FILM AND HISTORY: 21:510:301 (Spring 2019) index 20171

This course examines how historical films present history, focusing mainly on American feature films. It seeks less to list these films' inaccuracies than to identify and analyze how and why they have mythologized the past. By learning to spot films' ideologies, assumptions, strategies, and visions of the past, one can identify the evolution of modern societies' historical mythologies, values, and beliefs.

GRADING
Students are bound by the university’s academic integrity policy, which appears here: http://www.ncas.rutgers.edu/office-dean-student-affairs/academic-integrity-policy.
If you are unsure whether something is permitted, ask the professor, as the penalties are very strict.

TESTS: There will be a midterm on Mon. Mar. 4 and a final exam on Wed. May 15, 11:45-2:45. The format for these exams will be a series of short essays (1/2 to 1 page).

LECTURE QUESTIONS: At the end of each session, you must hand in a 3x5 card with one or two brief questions or comments on the day’s material. Grades are based on the number of days when you attend and hand in a card; each unexcused absence lowers this score by five points. To receive credit, your card must contain a relevant question or comment. Each unexcused absence lowers this score by five points. Time missed for arriving late or leaving early is added up; each 80 minutes constitutes an absence.
For an absence to be excused, you must provide written evidence of a valid reason, and all excuses must be in by the day of the final exam. Your overall course grade will fall by five points for each unexcused absence starting with the fourth one. Any student who misses eight or more sessions through any combination of excused and unexcused absences will not earn credit in this course; such students should withdraw from the class.

CLASS PARTICIPATION: Everyone is required to participate regularly in class discussions. Your score reflects both the frequency of your participation and the quality of your comments and questions about the day's readings and films. Use of electronic devices such as cell phones is strictly prohibited and will lower this score. Students are expected to pay attention throughout the entire class, including during the showing of film clips. Laptops are not allowed in this class.

QUIZZES: There will be several unannounced quizzes, with a few short, specific questions on the readings and films assigned for that day. The lowest grade on the quizzes will not count. There can be no makeup for pop quizzes, so missing a quiz without a valid excuse incurs a zero on that quiz. If you have a valid, documented excuse, then we will average one less quiz for you at the course’s end; the missed quiz thus does not count against you.

DANA library also owns most of these films on DVD.
Be sure to check the year of release as there may be other films with these titles. If you are unsure, ask me.
Try to avoid directors’ cuts so that we are watching the same films.
Try to watch the optional films – at least part of them. Knowing them will help you on the midterm and final.
Rutgers University welcomes students with disabilities into all of the University's educational programs. In order to receive consideration for reasonable accommodations, a student with a disability must contact the appropriate disability services office at the campus where you are officially enrolled, participate in an intake interview, and provide documentation: https://ods.rutgers.edu/students/documentation-guidelines. If the documentation supports your request for reasonable accommodations, your campus’ disability services office will provide you with a Letter of Accommodations. Please share this letter with your instructors and discuss the accommodations with them as early in your courses as possible. To begin this process, please complete the Registration form on the ODS web site at: https://ods.rutgers.edu/students/registration-form. For more information please contact the Office of Disability Services in the Paul Robeson Campus Center, in suite 219, by phone at 973-353-5375 or by email at odsnewark@newark.rutgers.edu.
