Course Description: This course will explore the history and politics of American imperial expansion, past and present, in order to understand America’s role in the world. In the course, we will learn about distinct phases in American territorial expansion, as well as other forms of imperialism. Students will be invited to ask questions such as: what constitutes an empire and what is imperialism? Has the US been, and does it continue to be, imperialist? We will seek to answer these questions historically, by looking at the role of the US in multiple parts of the world, including the settler context. Finally, we will inquire into how the history of American settler and foreign policy impacts contemporary global politics.

Welcome to class!

Required text:

The text can be purchased, either new or used, at the University bookstore.

- Please bring a copy of your readings to class each week, and please complete your readings before class.
Learning Objectives:

- To gain historical knowledge of different phases and forms of American interventionism using grounded case studies
- To promote critical thinking in assessing America’s role in the world
- To develop and also question different conceptual tools that are used to understand America’s position in the world
- The ability to interpret course materials and demonstrate creative thinking
- Improvement of reading skills (for example through in-class instruction on critical reading techniques)
- Improvement of writing skills through essay-style test questions
- Enhancement of time-management skills
- The development of translational skills: taking what you have learned in class and translating and synthesizing that knowledge into different formats, such as multimedia outputs
- To professionalize students and foster forward-thinking in preparation for their future and present careers, including working cooperatively and self-reflexively

Assessment:
There will be three tests in this class, and you will also earn grades for attendance and participation.
