Spring 2018

Course Description:

Together we will explore events, intellectual concepts, and historical narratives that have come to dominate our interpretations of the history of Western Civilization from the seventeenth century to the present day. We will use the textbook as a resource of information and our time in class to add and expand our collective understanding of the material. You will become proficient in analyzing primary sources and original documents. Our objective is to think critically, learn to analyze historical sources, and understand how history is constructed. This course covers several hundred years of history and although we will encounter many important historical figures and events, the primary purpose is to analyze the 'why' rather than the 'who' and 'when'. After taking this course you will be able to discuss the complexities of the following questions and more: What is Europe? Is it a geographical concept or an idea? How has it transformed and why? What is progress? Is it measurable? Is it always positive?

Learning Objectives:

In this course students will learn and practice thinking historically:

- a). analyzing, synthesizing and interpreting information to explain change over time
- b). interpreting various primary sources in their historical context and in their historical significance
- c). engaging critically with historical argument keeping in mind underlying theories, assumptions, and approaches
- d). communicating historical knowledge, interpretations, and arguments in written and oral forms
- e). understanding that content (historical and otherwise) is created within a certain context

Required Texts:

1. Lynn Hunt et al. The Making of the West: Peoples and Cultures. Volume 2: Since 1500. 5th Edition. Boston: Bedford/St. Martin's, 2015. ISBN: 978-145-768-1530

OR

Lynn Hunt et al. Loose-Leaf of The Making of the West: Peoples and Cultures. Volume 2: Since 1500. 5th Edition. Boston: Bedford/St. Martin's, 2015. ISBN: 978-1-319-02754-4

2. Katherine J. Lualdi. Sources of the Making of the West: Peoples and Cultures. Volume 2: Since 1500. 4th Edition. Boston: Bedford/St. Martin's, 2012. ISBN: 978-0-312-57612-7 (Referred to in the syllabus as Lualdi)

3. Christopher Browning. Ordinary Men: Reserve Police Battalion 101 and the Final Solution in Poland. Harper Perennial, 1998. ISBN: 978-0060995065

NOTE: The university bookstore has both the Paper version of the textbook and the Loose-leaf version. You can decide which one is preferable. The Sources are included with either version for the same price. Be vigilant if buying your textbook elsewhere (including the publisher's website) to make sure that the Sources text is included.

Grading:

This course will adhere to the following gradings rubric:

A: 90-100 B+: 85-89 B: 80-84 C+: 75-79 C: 70-74 D: 60-69 F: 0-59

The final grade will be based on a combination of assignments:

Midterm Exam (25%), Final Exam (25%), Paper (25%), Participation and In-Class assignments (15%), Primary Source Analysis Exercise (10%)

Participation and In-Class Assignments

Participation in discussions is not optional. Only if students contribute in an informed and thoughtful manner can discussions be productive. In-Class assignments will be given at random and without prior announcement. They are designed to practice some of the course's learning objectives, reward preparedness and attentiveness, as well as monitor attendance. They can take various forms – from a half-page thought piece on a certain question we discuss to a few short questions related to a primary source. No make-ups will be allowed; however, the lowest scored in-class assignment will not count in the final grade calculation.

Absence from Exams

Excused absences from exams will only be granted for students who can document medical or family emergency. Students who feel a personal emergency is sufficiently grave to warrant an excused absence must speak with the instructor in person and provide written documentation demonstrating need for the absence.

Late work

For the assignments with an in-class due date, only cases that qualify in the "absence from exams" criteria would be considered for extension. For everyone else, every late day will incur a half letter grade deduction.

Communicating with the Instructor:

All communications (electronic and otherwise) that you have with faculty and your fellow students in this course should be respectful and professional. Please make sure that your inbox is not full and your Rutgers email address (or forwarding account) is functioning properly, as all course communications will be distributed through Blackboard, which utilizes your Rutgers email address.

Before you email: 1). Check the syllabus for the answer. 2). Check the blackboard for announcements. 3). Ask a fellow student if it was discussed in class.

When emailing: 1). Make sure to put your last name followed by the course number and section in the subject line. 2). Make sure your email has a proper salutation, is grammatically correct, and contains a clear statement of your problem or concern, as well as a signature.

I am happy to help you with any content of the course that you do not understand or would like to clarify. I encourage you to make use of my office hours throughout the semester.

Academic Integrity/Behavior

Rutgers expects and requires all its students to act with honesty and integrity and respect the rights of others in carrying out all academic assignments. Plagiarism is a serious and punishable offense and will not be tolerated. Cases of plagiarism will immediately be sent to the appropriate college dean for review. You are responsible for familiarizing yourself with Rutgers policy on plagiarism at <http://history.rutgers.edu/undergrad/plagiarism.htm> for more information.

All students are required to sign the Rutgers Honor Code Pledge. To receive credit, every assignment must have your signature under the following phrase: “On my honor, I have neither received nor given any unauthorized assistance on this assignment.”

Attendance:

Attendance is mandatory. If you have an excused absence, please provide written evidence for such absence. For more details on what constitutes an excused absence, please consult the Rutgers catalog. More than three unexcused absences will result in a deduction of 5% of your FINAL grade. Leaving class early counts as an unexcused absence. Three late arrivals also count as an unexcused absence. Per history department policy, any student who misses 8 or more sessions through any combination of excused and unexcused absences will not earn credit in this class. Such students should withdraw to avoid getting an F.

Disabilities accommodation:

Rutgers University welcomes students with disabilities into all of the University's educational programs. In order to receive consideration for reasonable accommodations, a student with a disability must contact the appropriate disability services office at the campus where you are officially enrolled, participate in an intake interview, and provide documentation: <https://ods.rutgers.edu/students/documentation-guidelines>. If the documentation supports your request for reasonable accommodations, your campus's disability services office will provide you with a Letter of Accommodations. Please share this letter with your instructors and discuss the accommodations with them as early in your courses as possible. To begin this process, please complete the Registration form on the ODS web site at: <https://ods.rutgers.edu/students/registration-form>. For more information please contact the Office of Disability Services in the Paul Robeson Campus Center, in suite 219 or contact odsnewark@rutgers.edu.
