COURSE SYNOPSIS

This course will explore the narratives of America following the Civil War by analyzing the stories Americans told of themselves that contoured their experiences. In discussing how these narratives intersect, interact and sometimes contradict each other, we will discover the complexities in American life in the late-19\textsuperscript{th} and 20\textsuperscript{th} centuries.

A number of themes structure this survey of American history including race, gender, sexuality, economy and (sub)urbanism. Students will learn how a historical perspective of these categories inform our present experience.

Students will develop their analytical skills in the written assignments and the class discussions by identifying the main theses, supporting arguments, evidence, assumptions and rhetorical strategies of the course readings.

READINGS

All readings will be posted to Blackboard. Readings are divided into two groups: Primary Documents and Articles – historical essays (secondary sources) that discuss the period under study.

ASSIGNMENTS

Attendance: Attendance is mandatory. Students are expected to attend every class, arrive on time and stay for the duration of the class. Students may be excused for illness, family emergency and similar extreme situations, as well as religious observance. Absences for work, job interviews and similar events will not be excused.

Six unexcused absences will result in an automatic failing grade. Students who miss eight or more sessions through any combination of excused and unexcused absences will not earn credit in this class. Such students should withdraw from the course.

Participation: Everyone is both expected and required to participate in class discussions. The participation grade will reflect the quality and quantity of your in-class participation.

Summaries: Students will write and hand in a hard copy one-to-two page summary of the readings at the start of every class, identifying the main points that each author makes and the way in which the readings are related.

Primary Source Essay: Students will write one 3-5 page essay that will engage primary sources. Over the course of the semester, students will learn how to interpret and connect each primary source to an idea covered in our readings and lectures. These essays will give students an opportunity to demonstrate their skills as researchers and writers. Due April 25.

Exams: Two exams will be held in class, one midway through the semester and one at the end of the semester.

Students must complete both exams and submit the primary source essay to pass the course.

CITATION FAQ
What do you need to cite?
Any phrase, sentence or paragraph that you have taken from another source, even if it’s a sentence fragment. For example, if you use the phrase “to be or not to be: that is the question,” you must provide a citation to the relevant page in a published edition of William Shakespeare’s play Hamlet. As a general rule, if you are using words that someone else wrote, you must cite. Failure to do so constitutes plagiarism.

Any information that you found in another source (and isn’t common knowledge), even if you paraphrase. For example, if you write something like “almost ten per cent of the adult males in the United States in 1924 were members of the Ku Klux Klan,” you have to say where you got that information. If you don’t, how do I know that you’re not making it up?

As a general rule, you don’t have to provide citations for information that we covered in class.

What happens if you don’t cite?
It depends. The highest grade that a term paper without citations will receive is C+. If you quote substantially from another source and do not (a) indicate that it is a quote and (b) indicate where the quote came from, I will consider this plagiarism. You will receive a zero (0) on the paper and I will submit it to the Dean’s office for review.

If you don’t know whether you should cite a passage, quote or information, err on the side of caution and cite it.

What do you need?
As a general rule, you will need a bibliography page and footnotes or parenthetical notes in text for all of your references. Please use either the University of Chicago/Turabian citation style or the simplified citation style on the next page.
SUBMISSION POLICY

All assignments must be submitted in hard copy by the beginning of class, and your paper must be submitted to turnitin.com on Blackboard. No assignments will be accepted after the deadline, except with prior arrangement. If you miss a class – and a deadline – due to illness or other excused absence, you must inform me, and submit the assignment to turnitin.com (to be followed with hard copy at the earliest opportunity).

Late paper submissions will be accepted for one week with a one-mark penalty for each day late, and only with prior arrangement.

Assignments must be typed double-spaced in 12-point Times New Roman on white paper, stapled or bound in a cover. Handwritten submissions will not be accepted.

PRIMARY AND SECONDARY SOURCES

Historians refer to primary and secondary sources. A primary source is a document, speech, or other sort of evidence written, created or otherwise produced during the time under study, or by a participant. Primary sources offer an inside view of a particular event. Secondary sources provide interpretation and analysis of primary sources. Secondary sources are usually (though not always) written by professional historians and are one step removed from the original event.

Citation Basics

As a rule, historians cite sources according to the University of Chicago style. If you plan to pursue further studies in history, you will find it advisable to acquire A Manual for Writers of Research Papers, Theses, and Dissertations, Eighth Edition: Chicago Style for Students and Researchers by Kate L. Turabian. For the purposes of this course, you may used the simplified guide below.
