The focus of this course will be to analyze the ways in which ethnic and gendered identities are represented in American film since the early twentieth century, and to gauge the effects of those representations. Although this course focuses on the traditional interlocked representations of African Americans and European Americans in classic American films, we will also analyze the representation of other ethnic groups so that we may construct a narrative of race in American film, gleaned from a variety of perspectives. Themes covered include: the origins of racial and gendered stereotyping in film, interracial family romance, film and social activism and Civil Rights, representation in film, model minorities, Whiteness, tokenism, coming-of-age, sexuality, labor, and the white savior, among others.

Course Objectives:

- Learn to distinguish between film representation and historical reality
- Learn the relationship between film theory and film images
- Learn to analyze films as literary and historical narratives
- Acquire specialized vocabulary to discuss and analyze film
- Learn to write a film response essay
- Improve writing and critical thinking skills
- Sharpen public speaking skills through an oral presentation
• Sharpen skills working as part of a team through two group projects
• Learn to create a virtual analytical narrative using multimedia sources
• Develop skills for creating educational and creative content on social media sites such as Tumblr
• Interpret the various intersections of race, gender and sexuality
• Develop a rhetoric for discussing race that manifests sensitivity and care

Note: This syllabus may be subject to change. The instructor will make students aware of changes via email.

Course Requirements

➢ Required Texts:

The majority of films and other texts are posted on the course’s Blackboard site. There may be one or two films that you will need to watch via Netflix or rent via Amazon or iTunes. I will let you know in advance if this is the case.

➢ Office Hours

My office hours are for you. Feel free to email me about scheduling a Zoom appointment if you have any questions you’d like to discuss regarding assignments, readings, film analysis, or other pertinent topics. My office is an open and safe space for continuous dialogue, and there is no such thing as a “stupid” question.

Regarding emails, I will try and get back to students within 24 hours (many times, sooner) Mondays-Fridays. However, I may not respond to emails on Saturdays and Sundays.

➢ Grade Breakdown:

Group PowerPoint Presentation: 20%
Quizzes #1-12: 20%
Response Essays #1-2: 20%
Tumblr Collage Journal: 20%
Final Group Project: 20%

➢ Group PowerPoint Presentation

Each week, a group of students will introduce an assigned film to the class via PowerPoint. Group PowerPoints must be emailed to me no later than 9:00 AM on the Monday of the week your presentation is due. Your PowerPoint presentations must cover the following information:

1. Historical context: what was going on in the United States at the time the film was released?
2. Reason for making: who made the film? why was the film made? and for what kind of audience?
3. Reception: how was the film received by popular media and news outlets (what kind of press did it get)? Did it receive any awards?
4. Key words: After having researched and watched the film, what are 2-3 key words the class should know before they watch the film? These words should highlight the film’s main themes. Examples include melodrama, interracial marriage, reconstruction, model minority, etc. You should be sure to provide a definition for each word you choose.
5. Introduce two discussion questions for the class to think about as they watch the film.
6. Answer each of the two discussion questions on individual slides. Your answers to these questions should be in paragraph form (roughly 1-2 paragraphs for each question)

All of these criteria require that you watch the film in its entirety and conduct outside research before the day your presentation is due.

The group presentation is worth 20% of your final grade. All members of the group will receive the same grade for this assignment (I will make few exceptions). It is the group’s responsibility to divvy up the workload as fairly as possible. I highly recommend that groups meet via Zoom or WebEx once or twice before they submit the presentation.

I will do my best to assign you to a group presenting on a date/film that appeals to your interests. Email me three choices, including date and film title, stating your preferences for leading class discussion. In selecting your three choices, consider which topics/films most appeal to you and your schedule (i.e. don’t select a date when you have a paper due in another class). You may also email me specific dates when you prefer not to present. In order to consider your preferences, I must receive your choices by Thursday, September 3 at 6:00 PM. I will do my best to accommodate everyone’s preferences, but this will not always be possible. I will assign dates in the order in which I receive your emails.

Quizzes

You will be given 12 quizzes over the course of the semester. These quizzes are meant to assure that you keep up with the workload and to test your comprehension of key themes in the films we watch. You will take the quizzes directly on Blackboard and can take them any time from Thursday at 6:00 AM until Friday at 6:00 PM. These quizzes should not take longer than 10 minutes of your time; however, you will have 20 minutes total to complete the quiz once you open it. Note: you will only have one attempt to take each quiz. Be sure that you are prepared before you open the quiz, because you will not be able to open it a second time.

These quizzes are worth 20% of your final grade. I will drop your two lowest quiz scores when calculating your final grades. If for some reason you do not take a quiz one week, that quiz will count towards one of your dropped scores. For this reason, you will not have the opportunity to make up a missed quiz for any reason including illness. The quizzes will close at exactly 6:00 PM each Friday, so be sure to begin by at least 5:40 PM.
Response Essays

You are required to write two response essays this semester. These essays are due on Friday, September 11 and Friday, November 13, each at 6:00 PM. These essays are responses to questions I will post on the Monday of the week the assignment is due. The question for essay #1 will ask you to think critically about a single film, whereas the question for essay #2 will ask you to consider a particular film in relation to others we watched earlier in the semester. Each will gauge your understanding of how film shapes and responds to the evolution of race and gender ideology in the United States through time.

The essays should be 2-3 pages (no less than 2 full pages and no more than 3 full pages) and must be written in 12-point Times New Roman font, be double-spaced, and have 1 in. margins on all sides. You will submit these essays directly via Blackboard; all files must be Microsoft Word (.doc).

Tumblr Collage Journal

Each student is required to start a Tumblr account dedicated to this class; it will function as a multimedia journal of sorts. Each week, after you watch the assigned film, you should add at least four posts to your Tumblr page that speak to your interpretation of the film, how the film made you feel, and how you see the film speaking to the theme of the class: “race and gender in American film.” These posts can be in the form of images, video or audio clips, quotes, links to relevant websites or news articles, passages from your own creative writing, art, music, etc. You can include images and clips that stand out to you from the specific film, and you can use sources not directly associated with the film but that relate to the its themes, historical context, political perspective, or aesthetic approach. Ideally, your posts will be diverse in form and content.

Note: for each post, you must provide a very brief caption that explains why you chose this particular content to speak to the respective film. As you move further and further into the semester, I expect that your content, taken as a whole, will offer a narrative for how you understand the films coming together to speak to the theme of the class.

You are required to create your Tumblr account and follow my course account (handle: drlombardi) by Wednesday, September 2 at 6:00 PM. I will create a list with everybody’s handles and post it to Blackboard. Ideally, you will follow and interact with each other.

While I expect that you will post each and every week, there are three check-in dates listed on the syllabus where I will look to see that you are up to date on your posts. On each of these dates, I will issue you a conditional grade that has the potential to change over time. Your grade for the final check-in will be your final grade for this assignment, which is worth 20% (for example, if you receive a B for check-in 1, a B+ for check-in 2, and an A for check-in 3, your final grade for the assignment will be an A and not an average of the 3). The three check-in dates are: Wednesday, September 30, Wednesday, October 28, and Wednesday, December 9, all at 6:00 PM. You will be graded based on: (1) the range of media forms you post, (2) the quality of your captions—how well you articulate the relevancy of the post to your interpretation of the film and the class as a whole—(3) the aesthetic of your page, (4) the narrative your page tells as a whole, and (5) whether or not you share at least 4 posts for each film covered throughout the semester (there are 14 films total; therefore, your Tumblr should have at least 56 posts; more are welcome).
Final Group Project

For your final project, you are required to work in groups to create a discussion video where you collectively respond to each other’s Tumblr collage journals. I will give further instructions for this project and assign you into groups of four at some point during Week 11 (November 9 – 13). Basically, you will each individually analyze your groupmates’ Tumblr collage journals and then come together for a discussion via Zoom. My instructions will include guidelines for how to structure the discussion, along with a set of questions to consider that reflect the themes and goals of the class. You will be expected to record the Zoom session and edit it down to 10 minutes. You are welcome to be creative with the editing and formatting if you are comfortable with such technology, though your grade will not be negatively affected if you don’t have these skills. You are encouraged to hold mock (practice) discussions before recording the final version of your discussion so that you are able to submit something that is clean and cohesive. Submitting a sloppily executed video will negatively affect your grade. These videos are due by Thursday, December 17 by 10:00 PM.

Notes on Late Assignments and Course Engagement

In the event that you know an assignment will be late, you should inform me at least three days prior to the assignment due date. If I consider your reasoning legitimate, I can choose not to penalize for lateness (this is completely up to my discretion). If you are ill or unable to complete an assignment due to a serious family matter, you should provide me with appropriate documentation, such as a doctor’s note.

You should have a plan to ensure that you will have access to the internet on a daily basis throughout the semester. Technical problems, failed internet connections, and computer crashes are not excuses for not completing course work or submitting assignments late. You should plan for what you will do if you have any technical problems.

Policy on Academic Integrity (Cheating and Plagiarism)

Rutgers University treats cheating and plagiarism as serious offenses. The standard minimum penalties for students who cheat or plagiarize include failure of the course, disciplinary probation, and a formal warning that further cheating will be grounds for expulsion from the University. If I find that you have used other people’s ideas (e.g., Wikipedia, Amazon reviews, book jacket descriptions, etc.), I will not accept the assignment because I will not be able to consider it your own work. You will get a failing grade (0 points) for that assignment and will not be able to make it up.

You are expected to be familiar with and adhere to the Academic Integrity Policy, available at http://academicintegrity.rutgers.edu/. Plagiarism will not be tolerated. Any use of the ideas or words of another person without proper acknowledgment of credit will result in penalties up to and possibly including a course grade of F. Likewise for cheating on exams and quizzes. Note that the uncited use of uncopyrighted material such as Wikipedia entries still constitutes plagiarism.

The department REQUIRES that the following honor pledge is written and signed on every exam, paper, or other major course assignment that is submitted for grading: “On my honor, I have neither received nor given any unauthorized assistance on this examination (assignment).”
